

96 graduate from VicUni

ABOUT 96 Sunway College students received their degree award certificates from Victoria University (VicUni), Australia recently.

The guest of honour was VicUni's chancellor, Justice Frank Vincent. Also present were the deans of the three faculties under the partnership programme: Business and Law, Engineering and Science, and Human Development.

Honorary graduates meanwhile included Sunway Group chairman and the college's founder, Tan Sri Jeffrey Cheah, Prime Minister of Malta Edward Fenech Adami and Irish Prime Minister, Bertie Ahern.

The college also renewed its partnership with the university, incepting a new programme called the Sunway Victoria University Exchange Programme which will enable students to do a semester at the university's Melbourne campus.

Existing VicUni-Sunway programmes include applied economics, commercial law, computing, transport and logistic, and even music.
