

Education & You

Sunway's finest

Sunway College recently announced that it achieved, for the first time, 100% passes for its A-Level programme, and 46% of the 125 students who took the examination scored at least one A.

Director of the programme Hor Poh Choo says, "The result clearly shows the students' good effort and it also reflects the close relationship between the students and their lecturers – how they can successfully work as a team."

She is especially proud that most of her high-achieving students will be going off to pursue tertiary education overseas.

Soon Suyin, a 19-year-old who scored four As, will head for Cambridge University in the UK to pursue her undergraduate studies in engineering.

"I could not have realised my academic goal if the college hadn't encouraged me to apply to Cambridge University," Soon says.

Syamsul Hani Hasran, aged 20, is joining the Southern California University to pursue Computer Science.

"I contribute my achievement in getting three As to all my lecturers," Syamsul says.

Syamsul says, "I would ask my lecturers for clarification if I felt the need to go indepth in the lesson. Knowledge-sharing with friends and classmates helped too."

Students at the college enjoy a wide range of academic features that contribute to a conducive learning environment.

Facilities include 120 classrooms, 15 lecture halls and 16 laboratories (for subjects like Physics, Chemistry, Biology, Engineering and Computer).
