UNWAY College has always believed in producing well-rounded individuals who not only excel academically but who also develop a sound understanding of the world around them.

In line with this philosophy, the college’s Cambridge GCE A-Level programme encourages its students to take part in extracurricular activities – particularly charitable causes.

They recently staged a musical drama, under the direction of their lecturers, for the orphans from the Shalom Orphanage.

Prior to this, the students had organised a food fair and the sale of tickets to the show to raise funds to provide lunch for the children.

“The students showcased their talents not only in acting, singing and music, but equally important, their leadership skills,” said director of the A-level programme Hor Poh Choo. “This will help our students in the future at universities or in the work place.”
