Pre-U students to experience Harvard

TO mark 30 years of academic excellence celebration, Sunway College is providing all its 2017 pre-university programme students the chance to attend the Asia Leadership Conference 2017 as part of its Experience Harvard at Sunway programme.

This value-added one-day experience will be an exceptional platform for students to learn, discover, develop and challenge themselves to be proactive stakeholders for a better world and a better future.

The one-day Asia Leadership Conference, scheduled over three weekends, is organised in collaboration with the Jeffrey Cheah Foundation.

Pre-University studies director Cheng

Mien Wee said: "This opportunity is offered as part of our continuous commitment to partner some of the world's leading institutions, where we bring world-class learning experience and impactful leaders to share their knowledge with students. At Sunway, our goal is also to equip young people with enough knowledge and skills to be responsible future leaders of this country."

The Asia Leadership Conference by the Center for Asia Leadership encompasses various areas which include workshops, TED-style talks, professional development and career mentoring. Participants will learn from Teaching Fellows from Harvard and other top-tiered universities such as University of Oxford and Imperial College London.

"The fellows and facilitators of the workshops are accomplished individuals from diverse fields who have much to share with students. Through this customised programme to train future leaders, we hope students will learn to improve on public speaking, negotiation skills and collaborative problem-solving.

"The programme is an interactive learning experience where students will be exposed to stories and hopefully they will pick up lessons on personal leadership," added Cheng.
