

Clever ones ... the victorious ACCA team.

Wise talk wins judges' vote

Sunway College's ACCA students swon the college's inter-programme debate recently.

The heated contest pitted the ACCA students against the students of the professional courses. The ACCA students were in the opposition to the topic It is better to be happy than wise. The ACCA team were represented by Yee Mee Hui, Khoo Hsien Chui and Joachim Ang while the professional courses team were represented by Trina Wong, Louisa Smith and Richard Beh.

Ang clinched it for his team when he proved his point "that happiness is an illusion but wisdom is forever," arguing that wisdom can lead to more happiness and inner peace.

The panel of judges included John Futa, director of Canadian Matriculation Programme, Lim

Tiew Ming, director of Australian University Programme and student counsellor Leong Su Kim.

The debate was organised by the Sunway College Student Services Department to promote analytical thinking, general knowledge of current issues, public speaking skills and eloquent usage of the English language among the college students.
