

Doing their bit for the KL Games

LOCAL private colleges have been doing their bit for the 16th Commonwealth Games in Kuala Lumpur, which coincided with the school break.

There were at least 66 volunteers comprising 58 students from Sunway College's School of Hospitality Management, four undergraduates from Monash University Sunway Campus Malaysia, and four lecturers from Sunway College.

Together, they played a part in ensuring the smooth running of the Ten-Pin Bowling event held at the Pyramid Bowl in Sunway Pyramid from Sep 12 to 15.

Before their actual stint, the volunteers underwent a two-day training which included a talk on patriotism and local culture, as well as on how to dress, speak and interact with local and foreign guests.
