

A sweet sound

IN August this year, the Jeffrey Cheah Foundation (JCF) raised RM70,000 through a charity recital called A Night of Musical Kaleidoscope.

The event saw close to 800 people at a musical extravaganza that took them on a journey through musical history.

It was presented by the Perak Society of Performing Arts, whose international ensemble comprises members from around the world led by renowned conductor Eugene Pook.

The performance featured acclaimed clarinet soloist Andrew Simon, who is also the principal clarinetist of the Hong Kong Philharmonic Orchestra.

Sunway University Ensemble, which includes several JCF Talent Scholarship recipients, also performed at the event.

This ensemble has garnered a steady reputation as a highly sought-after community ensemble for corporate events and benefits.

All proceeds from the event were channelled into supporting JCF Community Scholars, who are from homes and orphanages around the country.

to grant access to equal education.

This year, another 20 young Malaysians received the opportunity to pursue quality tertiary education with full tuition coverage, accommodation, living allowances and books.

Senior executive director of Sunway Education Group and Sunway University Dr Elizabeth

Lee expressed her gratitude on behalf of the group to "the many corporations and members of the public who have not only supported the JCF Community Scholars but also helped propagate an appreciation for music and performance" through their participation in the musical charity night.
